Brain Trusts Ceased to Exist Long Before Present Hue-Cry Started

WASHINGTON — Despite all the hue and hullabaloo about the Brain Trust, that much maligned organization long ago really ceased to exist.

It passed out of the presidential picture even before its famed chief, Professor Moley, became the victim of the vengeful Cordell Hull. The close-knit little group of thinkers which fed Roosevelt most of his ideas during the campaign, which conceived most of the Recovery Program, now is scattered as widely as the ideas which they sowed.

Professor Moley is editing his magazine in New York, only occasionally comes to Washington. Adolf Berle, the real brains of the organization, is busy piloting the tumultuos course of Mayor LaGuardia in New York, though he still has an indirect hand in the New Deal. Charles Taussig holds no official position, spends only one or two days each week in Washington. Sam Rosenman, Roosevelt's legal adviser, has established a lucrative law practice in New York.

Of the entire group, only Professor Rex Tugwell, Assistant secretary of Agriculture, remains.

Instead of this former organization, Roosevelt himself has become his own Brain Trust. No longer does a little band of serious thinkers get together and work out plans for and with the President. Roosevelt now serves as the funnel for his own ideas, picks them out from a much wider field, correlates and digests them himself.

To a considerable extent this is a handicap, because no big executive, especially the President of the United States, has time to act as his own agency. Nevertheless Roosevelt does. And the men whom he calls upon have become, in a very different sense, the substitutes for the old Brain Trust.

There is no central organization. Some of the so-called Brain Trusters do not even know each other except by name. Many of them are not college professors. There are a great number of them. New ones go and come every day. An attempt to list the most important of them, plus background and ideas they represent, follows:

HARRY HOPKINS, Administrator of CWA and Federal Emergency Relief. An Iowa boy who came to the big city, got interested in boys' camps, took up New York social welfare, and is now one of the closest men to Roosevelt. Hopkins is clear-eyed, frank, dynamic. He shoots no Johnsonian bombast. Nurtured intellectually in a Greenwich Village atmosphere, he retains an ingrained streak of practicality. He is not only a thinker but a doer, and one of the most attactive of the Recovery Administrators.

JIM LANDIS, Federal Trade Commissioner, is one of the newest and most up-and-coming of the newer men. A product of the Harvard Law School, he once served as secretary to the Supreme Court sage, Justice Brandeis, got his appointment through Felix Frankfurter, and has been one of the most dynamic figures in the New Deal ever since. Landis wrote the Securities Act and a good part of the Stock Market Control Bill. He also led the battle against General Johnson in order to protect the little fellow under the NRA. A tremendous worker, he sleeps only a few hours on an office couch, often does not go home for days.

JEROME FRANK, counsel for the AAA, is a Chicago product, former law partner of Sol Levinson — real author of the Kellogg Pact. Frank is one of the fighting liberals who stood his ground against the meat packers, the tobacco trust, and the milk distributors when George Peek was on the verge of giving those outfits almost anything they wanted. Now that Frank has secured the upper hand in the AAA, he has mellowed considerably, lost some of his fighting fire. His ideas still play a most important part in moulding agricultural Recovery. His chief difficulty is understanding the importance of playing ball with Congressmen.

PROF. JAMES ROGERS of Yale is an original member of the Money Trust and was influential in selling Roosevelt the idea of

44 TO OPPOSE SALE TAXATION SURVEY SHOWS

Administration Plan for 3 Per Cent Tax Doomed, it is Believed

VOTE ON TUESDAY

Leaders Hope to Change Minds of Solons

COLUMBUS, April 6.—The administration's 3 per cent sales tax appeared today to be doomed to defeat when it comes up for a vote in the house of representatives next week.

A secret poll of the house conducted by International News Service found 44 members declaring they would vote against the sales tax. Twenty-four were Republicans and 20 were Democrats.

If as many as 100 members are in their seats when the roll call is taken—and that would be 8 more than attended Thursday's session—the 44 negative votes would reduce the number of possible "yea" votes to 56, or 12 less than enough to pass the bill.

42 FAVORABLE

In the International News Service "straw vote" only 42 house members—35 Democrats and 7 Republicans—would go on record as intending to vote for the sales tax.

Twelve members—8 Republicans and four Democrats—claimed they had not yet made up their minds as to how they would vote, but the house roll call was expected to find most of the 12 either casting their ballot for the sales tax or refraining from voting.

Besides these, 11 other house members either were absent or did not vote in the private poll. Five of them were reported as in favor of the sales tax. three opposed to it and the position of the remaining three unknown.

Several members in the "undecided" group went so far as to say they would vote for a sales tax, but not for one with a rate of 3 per cent. If the rate is slashed to 2 per cent or lower, they said the bill would get their vote. If not, they will either vote against the 3 per cent tax or refrain from voting.

OHIO GRANTED MILLION MORE

Henderson Says State Relief Problem Can Now Be Handled in April.

COLUMBUS, April 6.—An additional million dollars has been granted Ohio by the federal government to supplement the original $3,500,000 allocated the Buckeye state for April relief, Adjt. Gen. Frank D. Henderson, relief administrator, was advised today by Harry L. Hopkins, FERA administrator.

Ohio had asked the federal government for an additional $1,500,000, but General Henderson said he thought the extra million allowed would tide the state over through April.

Henderson called a meeting of the state relief commission at once to take up the task of allotting the additional million dollars to the counties. It will be distributed on the same basis as the first $3,500,000, he indicated.

While much of the new money probably will go for wages under the new federal works division, relief officials admitted that some of it may be required to meet the greatly increased burden of direct relief to indigent unemployed.

Approximately 63,000 workers who lost their jobs when the Civil Works Administration was abandoned on April 1, found the new federal work plan failed to make room for them and many, with their families, were again thrown back on direct relief.

LEADERS OF NATION DEMAND OPPORTUNITY FOR CHILDREN

'First Lady' Leads Confab on Crisis in National Education

NOTABLES PRESENT

Frank, McNutt Urge Equal Chance for All

COLUMBUS, April 6.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the president, and a group of the nation's outstanding educational and welfare leaders today frankly discussed the national crisis in education.

From every pertinent angle, the emergency in education was studied and analyzed to determine "what can be done to make certain that the American child is given at least as effective educational advantages as present-day adults have had."

Sitting with the wife of the president as members of the self-appointed citizens' council "to give voice to the educational situation from the point of view of laymen rather than educators," were such noted leaders as Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war; Dorothy Canfield Fisher, novelist; Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin; Governor Paul V. McNutt of Indiana; United States Commissioner of Education George F. Zook, and Dr. Royal S. Copeland, United States Senator from New York.

EMERGENCY CITED

The conference, born of an emergency resulting from the failure of 2,000 rural schools to open last September and the fact that there are thousands of young people out of school and out of work, was opened last night by Governor George White with the reading of a message from President Roosevelt.

Congratulating the organizers of the citizens' conference on the crisis in education, the president's message said:

"Although the effect of the present lack of adequate educational opportunities on our national life may not be noticeable today, the time may soon come when direful effects will be apparent. It is, therefore, the responsibility of every American to see that the great strides that we have made in education since colonial times shall not be lost; it is also his responsibility to see that the schools march forward, that the scope of education becomes such as to provide educational opportunities for every person from early childhood on into adult life. One group that we need to consider especially are the many youths who are not in school and who are apparently drifting.

"I realize the seriousness of the problems that will be discussed at the conference, but I am confident that after careful deliberation you will be able to formulate a plan of action. My great regret is that I find it impossible to participate in your deliberations upon so important a subject."

FROM ECONOMIC VIEW

At the opening of the conference last night, the nation's educational problem was taken up from the economic viewpoint.

Governor Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, which along with New York and California is regarded by educators as having an outstanding state school system, de-

MAYOR GUARDED

CLEVELAND, April 6.—Mayor Harry L. Davis, who is a former governor of Ohio, today was guarded closely by a special detail of police after he received a letter demanding that he pay $15,000 under threat of death.

"It's a hoax," was the mayor's only comment.

However, Safety Director Martin Levelle and Detective Inspectator Cornelius W. Cody took the matter seriously enough to attempt to trace down the sender of the extortion note.

She Lost Her Blue Bird

Warned that her use of the NRA Blue Eagle was in violation of the law, Miss Ruth Brannon, Democrat seeking nomination to Congress in the eleventh Illinois District, Chicago, clips the bird from her campaign posters. Her opponent for the nomination brought the complaint.

Reporters who attempted to contact her uncle, Robert Bell, were told that "Mr. Bell is out walking." Telephoned inquiries to his residence were met with the statement that "we have had no direct word concerning the reports."

Story of Activities of Pickaway-Co. Men Against Morgan's Raiders Told

EDITOR'S NOTE—Reports of Morgan preparing to attack McConnellsville leads First Pickaway up Muskingum and ready for action. Another article of C. C. Een's book on the activities of the Pickaway men will follow Friday.

On Wednesday, July 22, the 1st Regiment, and the Zanesville sharpshooters were ordered up the Muskingum river. Accordingly we went to Marietta on the cars, and there embarked upon the steamboat "Jonas Powell," and steamed up the river gaily to Beverly, where we had intended to stop. Finding, however, that Morgan and his men were further up, we went on, intending to make McConnellsville that evening. But as Shakespeare has it, "There is a Providence that shapes our ends, rough hew them as we will." We, most unfortunately, in entering one of the slackwater locks on this river, ran aground about 3 o'clock p. m., and did not succeed in getting through the lock till some time after dark.

This lock is located on the west side of the river, which here presents the illusion of the sun setting in the East; many of us, from the winding and turning of the river, were unable to say which was the east or west bank.

AMERICAN ESCAPES JUNGLES

Engineer Feared Dead In Chaco Saved by Indians; Gold Bullion Safe.

FOUR OTHERS PERISH

Rescue of Milwaukean From Snake Country Miracle.

CALI, Colombia, April 6.— Details of his miraculous escape from death during three and a half weeks of wandering in the deadly Choco jungles of the Andes mountains were eagerly awaited today as Indians brought Newton C. Marshall, Milwaukee mining engineer, to Cali for medical treatment.

The Choco Indians, famous for their deadly accuracy at blowing poison darts, found Marshall wandering in a dazed condition following the crash of a transport airplane which disappeared March 10 with Marshall and four other men aboard.

MAY HAVE STARVED

Scarcely able to talk, Marshall disclosed his four companions were dead, but whether they died in the crash or from the starvation which the American himself narrowly escaped was not known here. The four fatalities were Walter Geck, German, pilot; Mechanic and Radio Operator Jahncke, also a German; and two passengers, Alexander Notz, a German, and J. C. Zunica, a Colombian.

News of the jungle tragedy was brought to civilization by an Indian runner, the only means of communication through the wild, snake-infested country. Although Marshall's rescuers were expected here today, it was possible they might not arrive until tomorrow or the next day due to the difficulty of travel with their human burden.

BULLION SAVED

Gold bullion worth $60,000 which was aboard the plane was safe, being guarded by several of the Indians who found Marshall while hunting graves of antiquity, in the vicinity of Betania.

It was said here that Marshall's triumphant battle with the jungle probably was won because of his familiarity with the country in which he was thrown on his own resources. Manager of the Choco-Pacific platinum mines, Marshall had lived in this country for 18 of his 47 years.

Death at the hands of the Indians themselves might have been the fate of many a white man under similar circumstances, it was said.

6 POSTMASTERS TO AWAIT PAY BOOSTS

Offices at Atlanta Commercial Pt., Derby, Duvall, Tarlton, Whisler Included.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6.—Six postmasters in Pickaway-co face the prospect of waiting months for restoration of their pay cut, ordered last week when congress overrode the President's veto of the independent offices appropriation bill.

Postmasters who must wait are those at fourth-class offices. Such offices are located, in Pickaway-co, at Atlanta, Commercial Point, Derby, Duvall, Tarlton, and Whisler.

Postmasters and other employes at first, second and third class offices will get their back pay, from February 1 to April 1, early in April, officials said. The reason the forth-class postmaster will have to wait is the highly complicated auditing and accounting procedure that will be necessary to determine and verify the amounts due them, it was explained by William L. Slattery, comptroller of the postoffice department.

Slattery pointed out that fourth-class posmasters get a percentage of stamp cancellations, on a sliding scale; a fee for special delivery letters received; a fee for each money order, and a percentage allowance for quarters. To deter-

County officials, Friday, were awaiting action of the state relief commission on the recommendation that Mrs. Carl V. Ritz be appointed 'case' worker under the Federal Emergency Relief program.

The recommendation was sent Wednesday and immediate action was expected.

The 'case' worker will investigate families on relief to learn which are the most needy.

Several local projects are being held up under the FERA until the 'case' worker reports names of persons who should get work.

Pickaway-co commissioners, Thursday, made a partial tour of the county with Engineer Howard Sweetman studying possible work for men on relief lists.

WARREN, April 6.—Lieut. T. B. Anderson today had narrowly escaped injury when his army mail plane, forced down at an emergency landing field near here, nosed over when it became stuck in soft clay. The propeller and a strut of the ship were damaged.

Misses Kirchofer, Steele Treated; Auto Skids Into Other's Path

BLAME PAVEMENT

Miss Steele Suffers Serious Head Injury

Miss Ethel Kirchofer and Miss Helen Steele, superintendent and nurse, respectively, were undergoing treatment in Berger hospital, Friday, after being injured when Miss Steele's automobile skidded on wet pavement into the path of a north bound automobile at 5:30 p. m. Thursday. The crash happened two miles north of Circleville on the Scioto Trail.

Miss Kirchofer is suffering broken nose, numerous bruises, abrasions. Suffering shock, the hospital superintendent remained bedfast, Friday.

The condition of Miss Steele who started on day duty at 7 after being employed as a nurse, is considered more serious. Thrown to the pavement by the impact, Miss Steele was unconscious all night Thursday, recovered consciousness enough to talk with her sister Arthur, a short time Friday morning before she lapsed into

X-RAY TAKEN

An X-ray was taken to determine whether she might be suffering from a fractured skull, the nature of her head injuries not determined Friday night. She also has numerous bruises.

Miss Kirchofer and Miss Steele had been in Columbus and were returning home when the accident happened. Miss Kirchofer was driving, it was reported, she skirted two other southbound cars, her brakes were applied, and the Ford coupe skidded around in the path of the car driven toward Columbus by Morris Fowler, athletic coach at Grande college, who was en route to the Citizens' Conference on Crisis in Education being conducted in Columbus.

THROWN TO ROAD

The door on the side of the Ford on which Miss Steele was seated flew open and she was thrown to the roadway striking her head. Miss Kirchofer was not thrown from the automobile.

Neither Mr. Fowler nor the two women, presumably teachers who accompanied him were injured. They were taken to Columbus by Dwight Steele, local automobile dealer, a brother of the injured nurse.

The Steele automobile was not badly damaged but that of Fowler had bent fenders, the radiator and front end of the car were smashed. It was taken to the Circleville Motors garage while the Steele auto was towed to the E. E. Clifton garage.

SAM LAMBERT HELD

COLUMBUS, April 6.—Samuel E. Lambert, 18, a Miami university student, was to be questioned by police here today after his automobile struck and fatally injured nine-year-old Margaret L. Baker as she alighted from a school bus in front of her Bexley home yesterday.

According to sheriff's deputies, Lambert, who was acquitted a year ago for shooting his father, Dr. Fonsa A. Lambert, national football figure, allegedly in defense of his mother, drove past the school bus illegally. The bus was parked, they said.

Lambert, whose auto was impounded, told officers at the county jail that he could not see through the blinding rain. He was released and ordered to appear for further questioning today.

CARRS RETURNED TO COUNTY HOME POSTS

WASHINGTON C. H., April 6.—The state civil service commission has found charges brought against Mr. and Mrs. Noah L. Carr, county home supervisors, insufficient and has ordered that the Carrs can assume their positions by the middle of April.

Only a slight smudge was left on their 16-year record as superintendent and matron of the infirmary. A 30-day suspension beginning March 15 was ordered and a refund of $13.94 paid for a Mixmaster without the approval of the Fayette-co commissioners must be made.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carr were put in the home temporarily while the Carrs were fighting the charges of mismanagement brought by the commissioners.

MORGAN'S RAID

we landed at a little town named Windsor, on the west bank of the Muskingum, 17 miles below McConnellsville. Here the news of Morgan's near approach was rife, and we landed, supposing that he would perhaps try to cross at the ford at that place.

CALLED AS PICKETS

Our company was taken to a school house to sleep in, together with one of the companies from Pickaway-twp. We had barely gone to sleep when the Pickaway company was called out on picket ---a most unpleasant duty on a dark night, in the vicinity of an enemy. We were not disturbed any more, and slept soundly until daylight.

Thursday, July 23---a day destined to be ever memorable with us as the day upon which the 1st Regiment of Pickaway made a forced march of ten miles upon the double quick, and went into battle with all the spirit and vim of old veterans. But I anticipate.

After a good breakfast on beef bought by the company of their own expense and hard tack, we went again on board the steamboat "Jonas Powell," steaming along at the rate of about five miles an hour. Nothing of note transpired for several hours save an occasional cheer in response to the waving of handkerchiefs in the hands of loyal ladies on the banks of the river.

On approaching within five or six miles of McConnellsville, riflemen were placed on all the guards of the boat to watch for guerrillas or bushwhackers. None appeared, however, and we passed on until a courier came with dispatches from Gen. Hill, importing that the rebels had crossed the river and were marching upon McConnellsville, then about two miles above us. The boat stopped, and the men quickly landed and formed in line. Our two brass twelve pounders were hoisted on shore, and the horses hitched to them, and in a very short time were thundering past us in full gallop.

clared that the present economic situation calls for "a new, a greater, a continuous patriotism" on the part of all citizens.

Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, appealed for a movement to balance the nation's life, which he said, is "quite as important as balancing the nation's budget."

In the minds of some Americans, Frank said, budget balancing has been "lifted to the dignity of a religion during the depression."

"But in a phase of economic crisis, there are interests that lie beyond economics and unless these interests that have to do with the bodies and minds and spirits of the men, women and children of the nation are safeguarded in the midst of crisis, economic recovery itself will prove a barren achievement."

The depression, Frank said, has now arrived at the stage where "we may either wreck or renew our schools."

Today's session of the educational conference dealt with the social aspects of the education problem. The speakers on this morning's program, which was presided over by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville, Ill., were L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, and Dr. Royal S. Copeland, United States Senator from New York.

The subject of Taber's address was "Education and Rural Community Life," while Senator Copeland's topic was "Education and crime."

In opening this morning's session, Judge Lindley called attention to the alarming condition of the nation from the standpoint of crime and poverty and asserted that education is the sole remedy for social and intellectual maladjustment.

BEALE WARNS OF STRAY DOG DANGER

Healther Says There is Much Danger; Three Children Take Treatment.

Dr. C. C. Beale, Pickaway-co health commissioner, Friday, warned residents of the southern part of Pickaway-co to pay special attention to dogs as Dr. R. E. Bowers, Ross-co health commissioner , placed a 30-day quarantine on dogs in the townships in which Kingston and Adelphi are located.

Three Adelphi children, Thomas, Harold, and Verna Radcliff, are undergoing Pasteur treatment for rabies prevention after being bitten by a police dog, the property of John Wolford, Pickaway-twp, which strayed from its home. The dog was willed by Sam Radcliff, father of the bitten children.

The state health department reported after an examination of the dog's head that it was suffering from violent rabies.

Dr. Beale through the press issured a statement Friday urging residents of the county to take no chances with stray dogs, and to shoot them if necessary. He said death from hydrophobia is one of the most horrible known to medical science and that after a person develops the disease there is no cure for it.

mine the amount due such postmasters as restoration of their pay cut. it will be necessary to dissect the records for the first quarter of 1933, since the restoration applies to February and March, but not to January. Many of the necessary records have probably been destroyed at the smaller postoffices.and substantiation of all the necessary data is certain in the most favorable cases to take months of correspondence, Slattery said.

Four Students Forced to Stay in Sorority House With 20 Co-eds

LOS ANGELES, April 6.—"It's no fun for us. Our work goes on just the same. The girls must eat. So must we!

"And not only that but I had a date for Saturday night with a Sigma Kappa---and will she be burned up!"

Which, through John Wells, summed up today the situation of four young college men, including Wells, who are quarantined for a week with 26 co-eds in the Colonial sorority lodge of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Wells and three of his Phi Delta Theta fraternity brothers, Paul Evans, Donald McLean and Malcolm Jayred, were carrying dishes from the dining room and washing them yesterday when a health officer walked up and tacked a huge yellow "quarantine" sign to the front door.

Helen Fischer, blonde co-ed, secretary of the sophomore class, had developed a mild attack of scarlet fever and health authorities put the house under quarantine.

The four men are working their way through college via the dining room and kitchen of the sorority house.

Miss Nelle Oesterle, employee at the Pickaway-co Farm Bureau office, attended the Matrix Table at the Deshler Wallick hotel, Columbus, Thursday evening.

Tom Frick
(The Laborer)
Says . . .

"We Switched from Gas -and Back Again!"

TOM FRICK, the laborer, has found work none too plentiful in the last few years and it is only comparatively recent that he has been employed with any regularity. The Frick family has learned to watch every nickel and cut corners on expenses wherever possible. Tom heard and read so much about high gas rates that he decided they could save money by switching to another fuel for cooking and water heating. That was several months ago.

Now they are using gas again, after finding that the cheapest of substitute fuels cost several times as much as gas used for common household purposes. The Fricks have learned, also, that gas is the smallest item in their family budget. Tom says that he was fooled once about the value of gas, but it won't happen again because he now appreciates it as his greatest bargain.

Isn't it natural that many of us, like the Fricks, should overlook the value of gas when we hear of it only in terms of price? The cry for lower rates—regardless of production costs—makes an aggressive political platform, but involves a poor principle of business. Considering that the finest of service is maintained and that gas is worth several times the amount asked for it, isn't it only fair that it should be sold at a price that is just, both to the customer and to the company?

HIGHER TAX ON RICH GAINING IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The progressive drive for higher federal taxes on the rich won a partial victory in the senate today as administration leaders accepted the Lafollette schedule for increased estate taxes.

The Lafollette rates would yield $95,000,000 more than existing law through taxes on inheritance. The total revenue, from these taxes, according to treasury estimates, would be close to $180,000,000 a year.

The progressives lost when they sought to restore virtual wartime income taxes, especially in the higher brackets. They forced a $7,000,000 increase in surtaxes but also lost when they tried to force an increase of the normal income tax rate from four to six percent on all incomes.

RATES BOOSTED

The new estate taxes, as proposed by Senator Lafollette (R) of Wisconsin, would allow an exemption of $40,000 but would impose rates thereafter, raging from one percent on the first $35,000 net inheritance to 60 percent of inheritances in excess of $10,300,000. Administration leaders agreed this was a method for forcing a redistribution of wealth, while providing revenue for the treasury from a source best able to pay it.

A similar increase in gift taxes was believed unavoidable. Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, in charge of the bill, said he favored a "revision" of gift taxes, once the higher estate taxes are approved, in order to prevent evasion of the inheritance tax.

The income taxes, already approved by the senate, will bring about $580,000,000 into the treasury. The normal rate will be four percent while the surtaxes, starting at $4,000, will range from five percent up to a maximum of 59 percent, which applies to all incomes in excess of $1,000,000 a year.

WOULD PUBLISH

The progressives also hoped for victory in their fight to force complete publicity of income tax returns. Administration leaders agreed to accept a provision, forcing corporations to disclose the names and salaries of all officials drawn in excess of $15,000 a year. This failed to satisfy the progressives, who demanded that all individual returns be made matters of public record.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

ABOUT the worst mistake you can make sometimes at a party is to say to the lady you just been introduced to, "Oh, yes, I used to go to school with you!" Some guys get themselves in bad for life that way.

Well, I heard about a guy of forty or so that was introduced at a party to a Mrs. Caryl, maybe it was, and he says, "Say, Mrs. Caryl, wasn't your name Van Park before you was married?"

"Sure, yes, I was Goldie Van Park."

"Well, I used to know you. I was learning to bounce a ball in front of our house—do you remember?"

"Oh, seems to me I do! Just think, Mrs. Cortlandt, this here Mr. Adams says he used to know me when I was a litle girl!"

"Well, no, I didn't exactly say that," says Adams.

"Oh, didn't you? What did you say?"

"I say I used to know you when I was a little boy."

And did he ever get invited any place again?

KNAVE'S GIRL

By JOAN CLAYTON

CHAPTER FORTY-NINE

Patricia's pain lessened as all pain lessens. Life resumed its natural course and some of her bitterness died. The days passed, the weeks, the months. It had been three months since that final, heartbreaking meeting with Clark. She had lost a part of her youth that bright June afternoon. Clark belonged to days so young and happy that they seemed incredible now. Incredible that she should have met a tall, laughing, lovable man in Central Park, sat with him so many times at tea, gone with him on merry picnics in the country. Those things, Patricia thought, must have happened to another girl.

For the most part she kept her mind on cards and blessed their mastery. Bridge demanded all that she could give to it and more. Willingly she gave all she had in energy and strength and vigor. Only a game perhaps, but a game requiring infinite concentration, a game that hurried the leaden hours.

Julian she treated with a polite and studied scorn. There were no more outbursts though. Why blame him, after all? He had only behaved as she had known he would. From the beginning she had known him to be thoroughly unprincipled, utterly unscrupulous where his own ends were concerned. As he said so often, she had chosen to link her destiny with his. Voluntarily and open-eyed she had posed before the world as Patricia Haverholt and as his niece. She had stacked the cards against herself. She must take the consequences.

Julian was dissatisfied and disappointed at the situation. That helped. He had won but he realized now that it had been a pyrrhic victory. That helped too. He went his way. She went hers. They lived in the same house as strangers. When they talked they talked of bridge. Then one morning, Julian selected a different topic.

"Marthe," he announced over his breakfast coffee, "Marthe is giving a ball on the third of the month."

"Is she?" replied Patricia, who knew perfectly well that Marthe was. It was to be a brilliant ball. The society columns had carried notices for several days. "Is she?"

"We are invited," Julian suggested after a pause.

"You can refuse for me," Patricia told him mildly.

"I don't want to refuse for you. I think we should go."

"I'm sure Marthe will bear up under my absence," remarked Patricia dryly. "Why did she invite me anyhow? Because you insisted upon it?"

Julian looked uncomfortable.

"It was Marthe's own idea," he assured the girl brusquely, untruthfully. "I had no hand in it. Your card came yesterday with mine."

"It's all beyond me," said Patricia and made a little mouth of disgust. "Marthe dislikes me as heartily as I dislike her. Why should she invite me to her house?"

"Your personal feelings and Marthe's have nothing to do with the matter," observed the man with a satirical grin. "Society isn't run for pleasure any more; at least the big affairs aren't. A ball as big as Marthe's is a business. She invited you because you're a celebrity; for the same reason you must accept. It's give and take. It's all a fraud. You'll have to swallow your pride and go."

"I don't see why."

"We must be seen there," persisted Julian impatiently. "You should know the racket by this time. If we don't appear at that ball, by the following noon it will be all over town that we weren't invited!"

"You look like the Empress Josephine. It's the color that does it," he mused.

"Why can't you go without me?"

"Because I won't, that's why. Buy yourself a new frock. We're stepping out on the third."

Patricia bought herself a new gown, a gown of deepest blue. The earnest little salesgirl assured her that the color was new, was being taken up by the smartest women.

"Not everybody can wear it," the salesgirl said, "but on you it's marvelous. It's just right for your hair."

"It does look rather well, doesn't it?" said Patricia indifferently, turning to observe her reflection in the mirror. "Isn't it just a little tight?"

"Not for your figure. You're slim as a wand. Do you diet?"

"No," replied Patricia, smiling. "I eat like a horse."

"You're lucky."

"Will the dress be ready on the second of the month? I plan to wear it on the third."

"Indeed it will." As Patricia stepped back into her trim little suit and adjusted her fur, the salesgirl carefully folded the soft, luscious satin and said: "We feel quite honored that you came to us, Miss Haverholt. Madame told me that you plan to wear the blue to the March ball."

"I do."

This time the other girl did not say, "You're lucky." But the words were written in her eyes. Strange to be envied, thought Patricia, walking from the dim gloom of the shop into the luxurious afternoon. The other girl, the girl in the plain black dress had envied her for more than her figure. She had envied Patricia her delicious leisure, her position, her money, her ability to buy a frock without asking the price. She had wistfully imagined a world where such frocks were worn, a world where men in dinner clothes took girls to the theatre, not to movies, a world of swift moving cars and glamorous evenings, a world that was all luxury and all pleasure. Patricia knew that came. The new frock had arrived. Even to herself Patricia looked unwontedly well, tall, stately in the slim, severe and flowing lines. Julian commented on it as she drifted down the stairs. He said with frankest admiration:

"You look like the Empress Josephine. It's the color that does it," he mused. "It's a strange color, so dark a blue for evening."

"The girl at Murchinson's," Patricia remembered with a faint smile, "assured me that this particular shade was high fashion. It seems the smartest women are wearing it."

"You're more than smart; you're stunning."

"I'm glad," said Patricia dryly. "I'd like to be a credit to the March ball."

The night was dark, a little chilly. There was a hint of fall in the air. After all it was September. Patricia rejoiced that summer was almost over. It had been an endless summer.

Otto, the chauffeur, stood at the curb. He opened and slammed the door; they were off to Long Island. The Marches had not opened their town house. Julian grumbled at the length of the drive.

"Marthe might just as well might better have given her brawl in town. That girl has got to be different. I wonder she didn't decide on Chicago and request her guests to drive."

"I don't mind," said Patricia. "I we never arrived it would be soon enough for me."

"Don't tell me you're nervous."

"Not at all," she informed him in temperate tones. "But you know how I feel about this expedition." She asked him then a question that for days had gnawed at her heart. "Do you think Clark will be at the ball?"

"Certainly not," replied Julian in honest surprise. "It's all off between those two. Marthe told me last week that she hadn't seen Clark for months."

"Marthe said that!" Patricia gave an odd, little laugh.

Heartburn a Warning of Trouble

It Usually Indicates Digestive Ills and Should Be Heeded

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

THERE IS a great deal of confusion about a common symptom known as "heartburn". I call it a symptom and not a disease because it is merely one sign of some disorder within the body. Many believe the symptom indicates heart disease; they worry about it. Others accept it as a trivial ailment and pay little attention to it.

Dr. Copeland

Heartburn is a peculiar sensation felt in the region around the heart. As a rule, it is the result of excessive gas formation in the stomach. This distends the stomach, causing it to press against the heart. There is gulping of gas and perhaps of sour fluid.

If you are subject to digestive disturbances, you are probably familiar with this annoying and really uncomfortable symptom. It is a common complaint with those who are careless about their eating habits. It may also be one of the effects of some disturbance elsewhere in the body. For example, it is sometimes traced to a disorder of the intestines, liver, gall bladder, pancreas, or other vital organ.

Don't Neglect This Symptom

It is wise for the sufferer from heartburn to consult a physician. Do not neglect this disorder, because it may be a warning of some disturbance which demands attention. The continued presence of heartburn warrants a complete physical examination. The doctor may recommend the X-ray and other procedures in order to ascertain the cause and determine what is necessary for cure.

Do not resort habitually to the common practice of taking soda. I venture to say, that tons of bicarbonate of soda are annually consumed for the relief of heartburn. It is true relief is obtained in many cases, but it is only temporary.

Bear in mind, that certain cases of heartburn are aggravated by taking an alkali like soda. You may require an acid, or more radical treatment. I do not recommend the taking of soda except in special cases and when prescribed by a physician.

I cannot overstate the importance of not neglecting heartburn. Recently I overheard a lady remark that she suffered from heartburn, but her mother had been a victim of heartburn and that it was an "inherited" trouble. Such is an old-fashioned idea and not now accepted.

Take advantage of modern medical knowledge. Failure to heed nature's warning is a short-cut to chronic disease and premature old age. It may lead to some very serious affliction.

Answers to Health Queries

I. C. T. Q.—What can be done for hyperacidity? What is the cause of the trouble in most cases?

A.—Careful diet and regular elimination should do much to counteract this disturbance. Improper diet and poor elimination are apt to be at the source of the trouble. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

M. R. D. Q.—What will cause a red mark (caused by a slight injury to the tip of the nose) to disappear?

A.—This will probably fade out within a short time. Do not tamper with it.

Desserts To Suit Your Mood

You don't have to be a moody person to have ideas and preferences when it comes to desserts. We have heard about quite a few women who must bake a pie every day to keep on friendly terms with the family. That sort of routine might be very easy to them, if pie-making can become automatic, but variety in desserts will furnish the last word in meal planning and provide relief from monotony.

It is an excellent rule to serve light desserts with a heavy meal, and to fill out a light meal with a more substantial dessert. Many finicky tastes have resulted from overdoing the final note of the meal—the dessert.

Fruit Souffle

Fresh or canned fruit may be used for flavoring a fruit souffle. Rub the fruit through a sieve and sweeten the pulp to taste.

¼ tsp. salt — 3 egg whites
1 C. fruit pulp

Add salt to the fruit pulp. Beat the egg whites until stiff and dry, and fold them into the pulp. Fill a well-oiled mold ⅔ full of the mixture. Set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven until firm. About 45 minutes to 1 hour will be required. Serve the dessert at once with whipped cream or a custard sauce.

Rice Froth

1 C. cooked rice — 1 C. pineapple
¼ C. sugar — 1 C. marshmallows, cubed
1 C. whipping cream, whipped — 2 tsp. lemon juice

Mix the cold rice with other ingredients and chill. Serve the dessert as cold as possible.

Ginger Muffins

A simple dessert that is not too rich for youngsters might be ginger muffins, topped with a frosting or served with fruit.

2 C. sifted flour — ¼ tsp. cinnamon
2 tsp. baking powder — 1 egg, well beaten
¼ C. molasses — ¾ C. milk
¾ tsp. ginger — ½ tsp. salt
4 Tbsp. melted butter

Sift flour with the baking powder, salt, ginger and cinnamon. Combine the egg, milk molasses and butter. Add the milk mixture to the dry ingredients. Stir quickly and vigorously until the dry ingredients are moistened, thoroughly mixed, and have a lumpy appearance. Bake in greased muffin tins at 425 degrees for 25 minutes. Makes 12 muffins.

Fritter Tidbits

Here is a recipe that economy-seeking women will be glad to try! Fritter tidbits may be made from very small quantities of left-over pancake or waffle batter. Mix raisins, broken nutmeats, chopped dates or bits of candied fruit into the batter, and fry in small spoonfuls until golden brown. These tidbits are crisp and an attractive accompaniment for a fruit serving.

Macaroon Cream

1 Tbsp. granulated gelatin — ½ C. sugar
¼ C. cold water — ⅛ tsp. salt
2 C. scalded milk — ½ C. macaroons, crushed
3 egg yolks — 1 tsp. vanilla
3 egg whites

Soak gelatin in cold water. Make custard of milk, egg yolks, sugar and salt; add gelatin and strain into a bowl set in ice water. Add macaroons and flavoring, stirring until it begins to thicken; add egg whites, beaten stiff. Mold, chill, and serve garnished with whipped cream and macaroons.

Bachelors and Old Maids

The term "old maid" is no longer in good usage. By the time a man or woman has entered middle life, that is to say, at about thirty-five or forty years, the terms "bachelor" and "single woman" begin to be applied.

Establishing an Identity

By IRVIN S. COBB

IT WAS plain the stranger was suffering from an excess of alcoholic stimulant. He wavered and lurched and wabbled as he ran to catch the trolley car; he slipped and almost fell as he swung aboard; he trampled on the toes of those who rode upon the rear platform and at length when he fell into a seat he struck with considerable violence a somewhat testy gentleman alongside him.

The latter resented being jostled thus rudely. Probably he had scruples against the use of intoxicants in any form and at any time. He fixed a stern and condemning eye upon the new passenger and of him demanded to know why he did not exercise a little more care when entering a public vehicle.

The person thus reproved, with difficulty focused his uncertain vision upon the face of the other.

"Dye shee me when I gotta board thish car?" he asked.

"I did."

"Dye ever shee me before in your who' life?"

"No."

"Ever hear an'body call my name?"

"No."

"Ever hear an'body speak 'bout me?"

"Certainly not."

"Then how the hell did you know it was me?"

PAY DAY

If you bargain to do any work
With a tool aptly used or your brain
And no part of it cheapen or shirk
As you seek for some glory or fame;
If you hammer each rivet and nail
With precision that's careful and true,
In a labor so fine you can't fail
If your best you will try hard to do;
Such a work will receive a reward
For it is God's will and His plan
That the faithful shall rise like a lord—
There is always a Pay Day for man.

If you think you can slight any task
With the hope that the world will not see
All the errors you made and not ask
Why you tried to so fool-hardy be;
If you seek to hide well every flaw
From the view of all those who pass by Tho you work with your mind or a saw
You will fool not a one tho you try;
If you work for the evil or wrong
You will hurt but yourself, not His plan
And a dirge you will sing, not a song
As you come to your Pay Day, O man.

PATTERN 9948

Nothing works quite the magic on the larger figure like a deep cape and slender panelled seamings—and these are the fashion points found in today's charming model. The cape is large, scalloped and gracefully flared, and follows the surplice line of the bodice closing. A snug hip yoke and the aforementioned panels keep the figure straight below the waistline. For afternoons in warm weather, georgettes and chiffons are lovely—in colorful prints or monotones. For very dressy occasions, lace would be ideal, and for mornings use dimity, swiss or voile.

Pattern 9948 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 yards 39 inch fabric.

OHIO SEEKING RELIEF CASH; AID DEMANDED

Relief In State Must Be Pared To "Starvation Basis," Is Claim.

COLUMBUS, April 6.—Faced with the realization that relief in Ohio must be pared to a "starvation basis" unless further aid is forthcoming, Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson, state relief commission chairman, today awaited a reply from the federal relief administration to his request for an additional grant of $1,500,000.

That amount is necessary, Henderson wired Hopkins, if the present crisis is to be met satisfactorily, relief to be placed on anything like an adequate basis, and the works program continued.

"I am making every effort to stop the discontent," he said, "But need additional funds to meet the present crisis.

REVIVAL EVIDENT

"The additional $1,500,000 will enable me to meet the situation," he said. "I realize this condition is temporary, and is due to abrupt termination of the CWA. I believe business revival now is evident in Ohio, and that PWA activities, together with warmer weather, will enable us to get on a reasonable basis during the next 60 days. However, April and May are critical periods."

The $3,500,000 made, available to Ohio by the FERA, plus the $1,200,000 available from state and county sources, permits employment of only 33,000 in the state under the new works division of the FERA.

"Previous publicity lead Ohio to believe that not less than 100,000 would be continued on the work division," Henderson stated. "The disappointment, together with loss of morale on the part of former CWA workers, has resulted in a serious situation in Ohio. Applications for relief are increasing out of all proportion to estimates, and protests are being received from all parts of Ohio that the original allotment is inadequate and if restricted to the present budget, standards must be cut to a starvation basis."

Mrs. Geo. O. Thurn Gives Facts About Many Phases of Cooking

Dear Friends in Circleville:

Repeatedly the request comes for chocolate angel cake. I am giving it to you this week, with a reminder that no angel or sponge cake should be cut. Mark with the tines of a fork along the top where you wish to cut it, then with two forks, held back to back, insert the double row of tines and slowly work along the crease, penetrating the top crust. This method pulls the cake into the proper pieces and does not squeeze it as does cutting.

Chocolate Angel Cake

One and one half cups granulated sugar; four tablespoons cocoa; three fourths cup cake flour; one and one half cups egg whites (this is about twelve eggs); one teaspoon cream of tartar; one fourth teaspoon salt; one teaspoon vanilla.

Sift the sugar twice and sift the cocoa with one cup of the sugar; sift the flour once before measuring; then sift with the sugar at least three times. Beat the egg whites with a whisk or flat beater, add cream of tartar and salt when they are frothy and continue beating until they hold a point when the whip is pulled out.

Gently beat and fold in the cocoa mixture, then flavoring, then flour and sugar gradually. Pour into a large, dry, ungreased tube cake pan (about four and one fourth inches deep by ten across). Cut through the batter with a knife to break any large air bubbles. Bake in a moderate oven, 325 degrees, for sixty to sixty-five minutes. Invert when baked and let cool. Ice with boiled icing or serve with chocolate sauce.

Quick Vegetable Soup

The day of the long cooking of soup in a pot on the back of the stove is gone, for the excellent canned soups are superior in many instances to the home made varieties and many soups made at home today are the short-meahod type. But many housekeepers ask me for soup recipes to use up left overs and odds and ends. This quick vegetable soup is delicious, economical and one the children ought to have at noon if you don't want a soup on the evening menu.

Four tablespoons butter; one half cup white turnips; one half cup carrots diced; one half cup celery, cut in small pieces; one small onion chopped; one and one half cups raw potatoes, diced, one quart water or broth; two teaspoons salt; one half teaspoon pepper; one half tablespoon catsup or chili sauce. Melt the butter in the soup kettle, adding all the vegetables except the potatoes and cook until the vegetables are browned a little. Add the potatoes and water or broth, then cover and cook slowly, just a simmer, for about two hours. Can be done in a slow oven, or on top of the stove. Add the seasonings and catsup just before serving. Have very hot.

Potato Chips

The home made variety of potato chips is delicious, not only as an accompaniment for salads, but as an appetizer, a crisp touch for the vegetable plate luncheon, an appealing bit to serve with the tomato juice cocktail.

Use only old or mealy potatoes; pare and slice as thin as possible. Soak for one hour or longer in iced salt water, one tablespoon of salt to two cups of water. Drain and wipe dry with a towel. Get all the water off for this causes the hot fat to sputter. When the fat is hot in the frying kettle, dip in the frying basket to heat it, then lower a few of the potatoes at a time into the fat, not more than a cupful of slices. Cook until golden brown on both sides. Remove from the fat, drain on layers of paper toweling and sprinkle while hot with salt.

To test the temperature of fat if no thermometer is used, drop one half inch cube of bread into it. It should be golden brown in one minute for these potatoes, as well as French fried and Julienne potatoes. With a thermomenter, the temperature should be 375 degrees F. when the basket is lowered into it.

Honey Almond Cookies

One and three fourths cup flour; two teaspoons baking powder; one fourth teaspoon salt; one half cup shortening; two thirds cup sugar; one half cup honey; two eggs; grated rind of one lemon; one egg white; one tablespoon water; one fourth cup whole blanched almonds.

Sift the flour, baking powder and salt together. Blend the shortening with the sugar beating well, add the honey and beaten eggs and mix thoroughly. Add lemon rind and then the sifted dry ingredients. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a baking sheet rubbed with shortening. Flatten with a knife. Brush with egg white beaten a little with a little water. Press an almond into each cookie. Bake in a moderate, 400 degrees, oven about twelve minutes. Three to four dozen small cookies.

MRS. GEORGE O. THURN.

New Version of Roast Fresh Ham

When roasting fresh ham, try treating it like the smoked variety. Gash the thick layer of fat in both directions, marking off in squares, stick full of cloves, add two tablespoons of cider vinegar and one tablespoon of brown sugar to the juices in the pan for basting. Delicious.

Vegetables In a Ring

If you haven't bought one of those useful ring moulds (and incidently some other shapes of moulds as well) put this utensil first on the list of kitchen things needed. The ring mould has a number of uses, but it is especially effective for vegetables, serving to vary them in the daily menus, or make an appetizing dish for the guest luncheon or dinner. Children who do not like their spinach or for that matter who will not eat vegetables as a rule, will eat them prepared in a ring.

Asparagus Ring

Two cans asparagus tips; three tablespoons shortening; three tablespoons flour; one cup cream or milk; three to five eggs; one teaspoon salt.

Cut the asparagus into one inch pieces; heat the fat, add the flour, salt and a little pepper, stir until well blended, add one third of the milk, another third and then the rest, stirring until smooth. Pour this sauce over the well beaten egg yolks. Cool, fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and lastly the asparagus pieces. Place in a well greased ring mould, set in a pan of boiling water and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for one half hour, or until set. Remove to a hot platter, place cooked peas or cauliflower in the center and serve with white sauce.

Corn Ring

One can (two cups) corn; one cup cream; four eggs, yolks and whites beaten separately; one teaspoon salt. Put the corn through the collander, add the well beaten egg yolks, salt, white pepper, cayenne and paprika to taste. Add the cream and then the stiffly beaten egg whites. Place in a ring mould well rubbed with shortening. Set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees one half hour or until set. Remove to a hot platter, fill the center with sauted mushrooms, or creamed crab meat, or stewed tomatoes.

ON Grand Street, just off the Bowery, Mr. Muscowitz, the delicatessen dealer, met his friend Mr. Rubin, the dealer in Russian hosiery, and was shocked to observe the stricken look imprinted upon the countenance of the latter.

"You look like something has happened with you," said Mr. Muscowitz in sympathetic tones. "What's the matter?"

"Terrible!" said Mr. Rubin. "I think I have lost my pocketbook with two hundred dollars in it!"

"You think you have lost it?" repeated Mr. Muscowitz. "Have you looked for it?"

"Shure I have looked for it. I have looked for it in my coat pockets and in my vest pockets and in my front pants pockets—in all of my pockets except my hip pocket."

"Well, why don't you look there?"

"Because that is the last pocket I have got," said Mr. Rubin, "and if it ain't there, I drop dead!"

Mr. Durigan Finds Relief in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Here is his enthusiastic letter:

"Am 70 years of age, and for 40 of these years there never was a week but what I had to take a pill or some kind of cathartic.

"I took everything, but gained only temporary relief. Until last spring my daughter, who is a nurse in a hospital, brought me some Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

"At the end of the week, I knew I had something that was it, and I kept on taking it. I haven't taken a cathartic since. I can eat meat any time, as often as I like, or any other kind of food, and no constipation." Mr. L. M. Durigan, 6811 Buffalo Ave., Jacksonville, Florida.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to help muscle tone. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much safer than patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Sold in the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

...MBUS, April 6.—With ...world records and one meet ...convincingly shattered in ...day's time trials, the ...l Amateur Athletic Union's ...championships went into its ...day today with the New ... Athletic Club, defending ...pion, and the Michigan ...lverines, last year's runners-...led for the lead with 11 points ...h.

...Vande Weghe, 17-year-old ...rson, N. J., high school boy, wearing the colors of the ...ark A. C., startled the crowd ...the Ohio State University ...atorium last night by break-...the world's 150-yard back-...ke record, which had stood for ...rs. His new record was 1:36.9.

The old record, held by George Kojac, was 1:37.4.

NEW 300-YARD MARK

The first world mark to go a-glimmering was broken in the preliminaries yesterday afternoon, when Taylor Drysdale, of the University of Michigan won his heat in the 300-yard medley swim in 3:35.4, knocking a full second off the former record set by Buster Crabbe in 1932.

Apparently tired from his afternoon's record-setting performance, Drysdale came in second best in the finals last night. Leonard Spence, of the New York A. C., won the event. His time was two-tenths of a second slower than Drysdale's new record.

A new world's record was made in the 400-yard free-style swim, and, although it was not made in actual competition, it was sanctioned by A. A. U. officials and will stand.

Jack Medica, the University of Washington's bespectacled "one-man team" set the new mark of 4:16 in a race with two Ohio State university tankers. The old record of 4:20 was held by Ralph Flanagan.

Medica also set a new world's record in the national intercollegiates here last week in the 440-yard free-style along with new meet times in the 1500-meter and 220-yard free-style events.

SPENCE in FORM

Walter Spence, of Rutgers, who wears the colors of the New York A. C., established a new meet record in the 100-yard free-style during the preliminaries yesterday afternoon by negotiating the distance in :51.1. Last night he also won this event but his time was only :51.6. Art Highland, of Northwestern, was second.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

GOLF season has arrived, and in a big way * * * A call went out, Friday, for caddies at the Country club to report at 9 a. m. Saturday * * * Thursday's rain made the course appear in mid-season form * * * The call for caddies means that there will be a large number of youths present themselves at the club house Saturday morning * * * But we want to point out that every boy who aspires cannot be a caddy.

There are certain qualifications a youth must have * * * He must be alert, wide-awake, attentive, must be able to think, and above all must have the ability to keep his mouth shut at the proper time * * * A caddy's job is healthful for school youths during the summer months but boys who apply must remember that the work is not all fun.

The New York Giants and Cleveland Indians are pulling a fast one on other training ball clubs * * * They are making a joint tour of the southland and are knocking off plenty of attendance records * * * Over 30,000 fans have paid to see the teams play since they started north from New Orlens last week.

Cliff Montgomery, Columbia university grid star, has obtained a job as assistant coach of the Columbus freshmen * * * He intends to go into business and not take up coaching as a career.

New bowling alleys arrived here Thursday evening and construction on them will be started at once * * * The new alleys will make the Circleville Recreation parlor a neat layout.

CADDIES CALLED

Boys seeking jobs as caddies should report at the Pickaway Country club, Saturday at 9 a. m., C. F. Gilmore, chairman of the greens committee, announced Friday.

Elden "Fink" Hill will act as caddy master this year.

Homage to Equine Hero

Man and beast join in a tribute to the memory of Hambletonian, greatest progenitor of trotting horses the world has ever known, as William Cane places a wreath on the gravestone of the horse at Chester, N. Y. "Lu Princeton," descendant of Hambletonian, stands by in reverent mood.

STUCK PAY DIRT

CANON CITY, Colo. Tom McDowell, a prospector struck gold in paying quantities in the Arkansas River near here. Not only gold, but 15 jewels and a quantity of fine works as well, were included in his find. While panning in the mud along the river bottom he found a valuable ladies' watch.

There's consolation. If the business navies is to protect foreign trade, we won't need more than one good rowboat.

Bowling News

The Streaks came from behind in two games, Thursday evening, to defeat the Coca Colas two out of three on the Circleville Recreation alleys.

Trailing at the fifth frame in the first encounter, Dewitt Bach tossed in a string of strikes to end with 223 giving his team an edge. Ralph Morris' finish with 188 gave the Streaks the second game by one pin. The Coca Colas won the last tilt with Bill Packard inserting a 223.

Training Camp Notes

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 6.—Bill Terry and his champion Giants were attempting to contrive some means of removing the dynamite from the bat of Big Joe Vosmik as the New Yorkers and their travel-companion-rivals, the Cleveland Indians, arrived here today. Vosmik's bat was the big reason why the Indians made it four games to two over the Giants at Montgomery, Ala., yesterday. The score was 4 to 2.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 6.—Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, the celebrated left-hander, was notified by Joe McCarthy today that he had been assigned to task of the pitching for the Yankees on American league opening day, April 17. Gomez got a good workout yesterday when he hurled eight innings against the Birmingham Barons of the Southern league the Yankees defeated the minor leaguers, 7 to 3.

ORLANDO, April 6.—Rumors of an impending trade between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Boston Braves were revived here today following the visit of the McKechnyites to the Brooklyn training camp. Casey Stengel of the Dodgers is reported to be seeking Lefty Bill Brandt, but the Braves apparently are reluctant to let the star southpaw go. The Dodgers break camp tomorrow.

AT THE GRAND

Romance is not usually emphasized strongly in the ordinary murder mystery drama, but it plays a vital part in the latest Warner Bros. picture, "From Headquarters," which comes to the Grand Theatre on Friday, with George Brent and Margaret Lindsay in the leading roles.

AT THE CLIFTONA

And so it came to pass that the little lady loved two handsome men—and they lived happily ever after.

Sounds like adult entertainment, and it is. It's Noel Coward's "Design for Living" which Paramount transferred to the screen with Fredric March, Gary Cooper, Miriam Hopkins and Edward Everett Horton in the cast, brilliantly directed by Ernest Lubitsch. It opens today at the Cliftona Theatre.

The film is an adaptation of the brilliant and sophisticated Broadway comedy of the same name, in which laughter alternates with drama in situations that have no matches for originality in cinema annals.

The principals, guided by the fine hand of the director, contribute performances that scintillate and bounce. The lucid and springhtly dialogue by Ben Hecht need make no apology to the original Coward script, and the visual flow provided by the Lubitsch cameras enhances the story far beyond foothight possibilities.

...deric March, Miriam Hopkins and Gary Cooper in a scene from ...sign For Living," coming to the Cliftona Screen Friday and Saturday.

...g "Buddy" Rogers, the young star of stage, ...d radio, will be at the ...lace, Columbus, in person ...of April 6th. ...brings with him his ... Cavaliers, radio and ...favorites as Raymond ...rgway" Douglas, Neda ...and Jeanne Gosnier. ...ar, the petite comedienne ...in "George White's ...screen presentation, will also appear in person with "Buddy" on the stage.

Rudy Vallee, Alice Faye, Dixie Dunbar, James Barton and Cliff Edwards are the stars of "George White's Scandals," the spectacular movie just made by Mr. White in Hollywood. The song-hits, dances, spectacular dance scenes and brilliant cast surpass even the big stage shows for which George White is famous. Popular prices remain in effect at the Palace for the dual attraction.

The only low-priced car with fully-enclosed Knee-Action Wheels and what a difference that makes in performance and dependability

Simple as a Shock Absorber!

Chevrolet's "fully-enclosed" Knee-Action is in reality a gigantic "shock absorber," built solidly on to Chevrolet's big, heavy frame, with the front wheel anchored to the "shock absorber" arm. The result: When the front wheel comes in contact with a bump or hole, it rises or falls to absorb the shock.

CHEVROLET In a Chevrolet, you not only get the gliding ride at its best, you also get several other Knee-Action advantages not found in any other low-priced car! The reason: Chevrolet's Knee-Action is of a very special kind. The patents on it are held exclusively by General Motors. In this construction, the coil spring, which is the heart of the mechanism, is safely and solidly enclosed in a heavy steel housing to keep out dirt and flying stones. What's more, the design of this type is such that the steering mechanism is completely divorced from the spring action, the result being a new and welcome type of shock-proof steering.

Admittedly these "fully-enclosed" Knee-Action wheels are more expensive to produce than other types. But Chevrolet feels that the extra satisfaction thus assured for Chevrolet owners is well worth the extra manufacturing cost. And this same attitude is responsible for the presence of many other "fine-car" features in the new Chevrolet: the large, roomy Fisher body. The new Y-K frame. The cable-controlled brakes. In fact, everything about this automobile reflects Chevrolet's well-known policy: to build the most cars, by building the best cars of low price!

devaluating the dollar. Like most professors he is extremely sensitive to anything that is said about him, and the thing that hurts him most is the accusation that he was responsible for the Commodity Dollar. Rogers is retiring and timid, but carried weight in the days of monetary upheaval.

GEORGE F. WARREN of Cornell is the man who sold Roosevelt the commodity dollar, through he has changed his views somewhat regarding its expediency. Warren spent most of his life as a poultry expert and once invented a system of holding an election light bulb in front of a hen so that it laid more eggs. The only trouble was that it killed the hen. This was Wall Street's great weapon of ridicule against Warren when he sold Roosevelt on buying gold. But the bird who scoffed then have now come home to roost and preen their tail feathers in the shadow of the inflation prosperity which resulted.

W. I. Myers, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, is another Cornell professor who is a poultry expert. On 84 acres near Ithaca he raises 70,000 chicks and 5,000 hens. Whether he uses the Warren electric light method is not known. Young Henry Morgenthau, who studied at Cornell, brought Myers into the New Deal, appointed him as his successor on the F. C. A. Myers wrote the original farm credit setup and in general has done a swell job.

Donald Richberg, legal counsel of the NRA, ranks as one of the intellectuals genuinely close to the President. During the campaign, Richberg virtually dictated Roosevelt's railroad policy, later helped write the Recovery Act and has played an important part in its administration. Once an affluent corporation lawyer, Richberg chucked his practice overboard to fight Sam Insull when that fugitive ruled Chicago. As attorney for the Railway Brotherhoods, he has been fighting labor's battles since.

Joseph B. Eastman, Federal railroad Co-ordinator, is in the same category at Richberg. For years his loud dissenting opinions on the Interstate Commerce Commission stood out like the minority opinions of Justices Holmes and Brandeis on the Supreme Court. He sincere believer that the only hope of the railroads is government ownership. Eastman is working eighteen hours a day to keep them liquid.

There are many other close Roosevelt advisers, including of course Rex Tugwell of the original Brain Trust. But in gauging, or weighing the present re-vamped Brain Trust, one fact stands out more than any other. None of them is putting any ideas over on Roosevelt. The President is forming his own ideas. He picks and chooses from the varied array around him. His radicalism is their radicalism. His faults are their faults. As far as policy goes, Roosevelt and the Brain Trust practically are one and the same thing.
